INCUMBENT TRUSTEES SEEK RE-ELECTION

EMPLOYEE SPOTLIGHT

MARK COULTER

For 35 years, Mark Coulter has been a steady presence at VVEC — the kind of person who’s done a little bit of everything and is always willing to lend a hand. From his early days in the warehouse to his current role in the Meter Shop, Mark’s journey through the co-op has touched nearly every department: services, satellites and heat pumps, customer service, dispatching, engineering — you name it, he’s been there.

For the past 27 years, Mark has called the Meter Shop home, where he manages the AMI system and helps get large power accounts wired up and running smoothly. What Mark loves most about VVEC is the people: “We’re one big happy family here. Everyone’s willing to pitch in and help when needed.”

When he’s not at work, Mark enjoys the great outdoors — hunting, fishing, and running cattle — but his favorite place to be is with his family. He and his wife Chasidy share three children, four grandchildren, and are excited to welcome another grandbaby in early August!

Thank you, Mark, for your decades of dedication, your work ethic, and your heart for this co-op family. Congrats on a job very well done!

WEATHERING THE WORST, DELIVERING THE BEST

How VVEC Crews Faced The Floods
and Fought Back With Power

When the skies opened up and storms tore through Verdigris Valley Electric Cooperative's service area once again, our communities were tested - and so were we. But as always, the VVEC team stood ready.

Heavy winds, flash flooding, and more than two dozen broken poles left thousands without power. Roads became rivers. Yards turned to mud pits. And yet, amid the chaos, something remarkable happened: crews grabbed their gear, fueled their trucks, and hit the ground running.

For days on end, linemen worked shoulder-to-shoulder in grueling conditions - battling the elements, navigating washed-out roads, and finding ways to reach members in even the most inaccessible areas. Whether it meant crossing flooded fields or repairing poles deep in the woods, the mission was simple: get the lights back on.

4 | LINE LIFE

Behind the scenes, dispatchers, warehouse staff, and office employees kept everything moving - coordinating logistics, delivering materials, and answering countless member calls with patience and compassion.

Restoration isn't just about power lines - it's about people. Every outage we restored meant comfort returned to a home, safety returned to a farm, and normalcy returned to a neighborhood. That's what keeps us going, even when the hours are long and the conditions are tough.

We're proud to report full restoration following this most recent round of severe weather. But even more than that, we're proud of the way our co-op family pulled together to meet the moment - just as we always have and always will.

To our members: thank you for your patience, your kindness, and your trust.

To our linemen and staff: thank you for showing up, every time and with everything you've got. In the darkest hours, you brought hope — one light at a time.

LINEMEN GO BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY DURING STORM RESTORATION

Amid the demanding work of storm recovery, two VVEC linemen demonstrated that service goes far beyond restoring power.

Unable to sleep the night before, Lineman Logan Wells hit the road earlier than usual – a decision that placed him in the right place at exactly the right time. On his way to work, he noticed the lights of a car off the road, down a steep bridge embankment. Something about the scene didn't sit right, so he pulled over and climbed down to investigate. When he reached the vehicle, he discovered a man still inside – trapped and unable to call for help. With no cell service at the bottom of the bluff, Logan ran back up the hill to get a signal and call 911. He then returned to check on the driver and began rendering aid.

Shortly after, fellow lineman Adam Prickett came upon the scene while heading to work. Without hesitation, he stopped to assist – bringing water and joining Logan in caring for the driver until emergency responders arrived. It was then confirmed the man was the subject of a Silver Alert.

Thanks to their quick thinking, compassion, and willingness to act, the individual received timely medical attention – and a potentially tragic situation was avoided.

We are so proud and very thankful to work alongside linemen who show this level of vigilance and heart – both on and off the job.

EMPOWERING THE NEXT GENERATION

THE YOUTH TOUR EXPERIENCE

Congratulations to Barnsdall Juniors Alexander Bruton and Hailey Gardener for winning the week-long, all-expense-paid trip to our nation's capital as VVEC's delegates to the Washington Youth Tour!

From June 13–19, 2025, Alexander and Hailey joined students from across Oklahoma and the nation to experience Washington, D.C. in a unique, inspiring way. Each summer, Verdigris Valley Electric Cooperative proudly sponsors outstanding high school students from our service area to take part in this once-in-a-lifetime experience.

During the week-long tour, delegates learn about the role of electric cooperatives, explore America's rich history, and see our government in action. From participating in National Youth Day and meeting members of Oklahoma's Congressional Delegation to visiting iconic landmarks like the U.S. Capitol, Arlington National Cemetery, and the Lincoln, Jefferson, and Washington Monuments, the Youth Tour is packed with powerful moments and unforgettable experiences.

Along the way, they form connections with fellow delegates from Oklahoma and across the country—building friendships that often last far beyond the trip.

The Washington Youth Tour has deep roots, inspired by Texas Senator Lyndon B. Johnson in 1957. His call to bring young people to the capital to experience democracy firsthand sparked a movement. What began with just a few state delegations has grown into a nationally coordinated effort, with more than 1,500 students and chaperones participating each year. Today, it remains a powerful tradition for electric cooperatives across the country.

Delegates return home with more than memories—they come back inspired to lead, empowered to serve, and equipped with a deeper appreciation for the values that unite us as a nation.
